Our association, the CA3C, was created many years ago.

Its main intent was to sensitize public opinion regarding an urgent implementation of the three major United Nations conventions concerning environment, the conventions for Climate Change, Biodiversity and Desertification. We then hoped that governments, if supported by large tracks of population, would take the necessary steps for such an implementation. Over years, meetings and councils followed each other, only demonstrating that national interests and short sighted egoisms were fighting against effective measures for doing so. (...)
